MASTER OF PUBLIC MANAGEMENT (MPM)

More so than ever, professionals in government (and organizations that work with governments) find themselves in environments that can be characterized as complex, unpredictable and unstable. The rules and routines, processes and precedents, and culture and capabilities of our organizations that used to work well before are coming under increasing stress. Our stakeholders and citizens are much less willing to trust government by default; they demand greater accountability from governments and public officials.

New policy challenges have also emerged: the promise (and the perils) of rapid technology advances; climate change, pandemics and sustainability; rising inequality and ageing societies; middle class anxiety and the rise of populist nationalism and identity politics; and a seemingly higher frequency of crises (financial, public health for example). These challenges require new thinking and innovative, even radical, policy responses. In a world that is increasingly characterized by rapid and sometimes disruptive change, governments and public sector managers must be prepared to disrupt themselves.

The Master of Public Management (MPM) program is designed to prepare students to operate and thrive in a complex, rapidly changing and disruptive world. The program will prepare them for senior management roles in organizations that deliver public services or interact frequently with governments and regulatory authorities. It aims to equip students with the skills, knowledge and habits of mind to deal with the fast changing and contested environments that governments—as well as their stakeholders, partners, and regulated entities—face.

In this program, students will have the opportunity to develop their managerial capabilities such as their analytical skills, operational competence and political acumen—all of which are essential for successful careers in the public or private sectors. Leveraging the strengths at HKUST, the program also aims to give students the interdisciplinary perspectives that will enable them to explore the policy, operational, regulatory and political issues associated with technology advances and sustainability.

Prof. Kira MATUS

Associate Dean of Academy of Interdisciplinary Studies (Taught Postgraduate Studies)
Professor, Division of Public Policy
Professor, Division of Environment & Sustainability
Taught Postgraduate Programs Coordinator (Public Policy)
Director, Master of Public Management Program

"In an increasingly complex world, the policy problems of the 21st century demand new skills in order to develop creative, innovative, and effective solutions to meet emerging challenges.

Our MPM program is designed to develop leaders in business, government, and NGOs able to meet these challenges. Our approach is interdisciplinary and forward looking, and our students learn to explore and embrace the complexity of policy problems. Our program develops individuals able to imagine creative new solutions, and the implementation strategies required to realize them."

BUILDING CAPACITY FOR IMPACT IN PUBLIC SERVICE

Unlike traditional Master in Public Administration programs, the MPM places an emphasis on knowledge, habits of mind, analytic skills and managerial capabilities that are highly transferable across sectors and policy domains. The program is designed for mid-career professionals, with at least three years of work experience, who wish to upgrade or update their understanding of public policy and strengthen their leadership and management skills. The program can also meet the demand for managers and professionals working in the non-profit or private sector who wish to gain knowledge and insights about decision-making and implementation in the public sector.

While most of our students, especially those from the civil service, will seek career advancement opportunities in their current organizations, graduates from this program will be sought after for work in governments, in the part of the private sector that work with governments, and in the fast-growing sector of domestic and international non-governmental organizations. The MPM will equip them with a skillset that enables them to move across these sectors – as competent managers and potential leaders.

Prof. Anthony CHEUNG, GBS, JP

Chair Professor and Advisor (Public Administration), Department of Social Sciences and Policy Studies, The Education University of Hong Kong
Adjunct Professor, Division of Public Policy, The Hong Kong University of Science and Technology
Former Secretary for Transport and Housing, HKSAR Government

“The MPM program should prepare students for senior management roles in organizations providing public services or having frequent interactions with the public sector... It can provide students with an interdisciplinary study with a strong emphasis on the policy, management and governance issues concerning technological innovation and sustainability.”

Prof. Pauline NG, SBS

Director, Hong Kong Policy Research Centre, Tianda Institute
The Hong Kong University of Science and Technology
Former Secretary-General, Legislative Council Secretariat

“The MPM program is well-positioned to equip civil servants and those in utility companies and IT consultants to pursue our dream in making Hong Kong a liveable city that will bring sustainable benefits to our people.”

CURRICULUM

The degree requires the completion of 27 credit hours (most courses are three credit hours), comprised of 18 credits of core courses and 9 credits of electives. Students admitted to the MPM will be required to complete the program on a full-time or part-time basis.

CORE COURSES (18 CREDITS)

The required core courses provide students with a strong foundation in the various perspectives, skills and tools that public sector managers or policy professionals must possess to develop and implement policies effectively. MPM students will take the following core courses:

- Public Management: Theories and Practices
- Economic Reasoning for Public Management
- Managing for Sustainability
- Managing the Policy Process
- Public Management for Technology Innovation
- Capstone Project
- Professional Development for Taught Postgraduate Students

ELECTIVE COURSES (9 CREDITS)

MPM students will choose three electives from a wide range of courses. In addition to electives offered by the Division of Public Policy, MPM students may also take courses offered by other departments/divisions such as HKUST Business School, School of Engineering, School of Humanities and Social Science, and the Division of Environment and Sustainability.

Credit Transfer

Subject to the approval of the Program Director, students may apply for course substitution or credit transfer of no more than 12 credits.

SUGGESTED STUDY PATTERN

Students (both local and non-local) can decide to pursue MPM degree on a part-time basis (typically in two years), or full-time basis (in one year).

STUDENT PROFILE

Our MPM students combine strong academic records with diverse and interesting work experiences. The MPM program focuses on the development of managerial and analytical capabilities, with an emphasis on preparing students for management roles in organizations that deliver public services or have frequent interactions with the government. The MPM thus attracts students from diverse professional fields. Apart from those in the public sector (such as government and inter-governmental organizations, publicly funded institutions and social service organizations), young professionals in financial, consulting, engineering and technology firms may also find the MPM an attractive post-graduate program to pursue. The varied professional background of our students enhances class diversity and the quality of the learning environment.

Most of our MPM students are alumni of top universities in Hong Kong and mainland China, such as the University of Hong Kong, The Hong Kong University of Science and Technology, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, Peking University and Sun Yat-Sen University. We also have students who studied at top universities abroad, such as University College London, Cornell University and University of California, San Diego. Finally, a wide range of majors is represented by our MPM students, again contributing to the diversity of the class.
